

MURRAY VOTERS ARE FOR KNIGHT

Three Enthusiastic Rallies Through the County Are Held by Democrats.

WHISPERERS DENOUNCED
JUDGE KING BOLDLY FLAYS REPUBLICAN METHODS.

Three enthusiastic rallies through the county were held by the Democratic party yesterday. In the morning they addressed a large meeting at Draper, where the inhabitants eagerly postponed the affairs of business to listen. They addressed a meeting at West Jordan during the afternoon, and were greeted with high enthusiasm by the large and enthusiastic audiences. At all three meetings the issues of the campaign were handled without gloves, and the underhand and disreputable methods of the Republican whisperers and gun-shooters were exposed. Not only did the audiences listen with careful attention, but after the meetings they crowded to the stands and earnestly assured Mr. Knight of their support.

At West Jordan Mr. Knight stated that he was pained to learn that a false and malicious pamphlet issued by the Republican committee stating that a vote for the Democratic party was a vote for the "American" party had been read Sunday in the Mormon meeting house by a bishop's counselor, and that he could not condemn too strongly such methods of entrapping voters.

At Draper Judge King called attention to the fact that Andrew Jensen, the assistant historian of the Mormon church, had preached both in English and in Scandinavian that all Mormons should get together politically. He said that such methods would drive more men from the Mormon church than all the missionaries of the church could bring into it.

The result of the meeting in Bingham Junction Monday became widely apparent yesterday when Judge King and Mr. Knight passed through that town. They were enthusiastically greeted and nearly everybody in Bingham Junction is wearing a Democratic button and is pledged to vote for Knight and Jensen. In the afternoon a large number of the Republican party have joined the Democratic party and are laboring hard for its success. Throughout all three meetings the speakers devoted much of their time to showing their audiences the unfortunate results to Utah which would follow the disintegration of the Democratic party, which is threatened if the plan of the gun-shooters and whisperers are attended with success. At the close of the Murray meeting Judge King asked all those in the audience who wished to see the results of the election to stand up, but the Republican member of the audience rose. The Murray meeting audience was composed of Democrats, "Americans" and Republicans, but at the close of the meeting all joined in pledging their hearty support to Mr. Knight. The big audience broke into cheers at every mention of Knight and Jensen, and when Mr. Knight was introduced by Chairman David W. Moffatt of Murray he was greeted with tremendous applause.

He denounced in no uncertain terms the political gun-shooters and whisperers, and showed how the Republican ticket had been arranged, not by the will of the people of the party, but by the underhand methods of the federal bunch. He spoke at length on the national politics, and at every mention of the name of William J. Bryan there was wild applause. He stated that it was his purpose, as it had been his father's, to build up Utah, without regard to the political affiliations of any one portion of the community, and announced that if elected he would regard public office as a public trust.

Judge William H. King did not hesitate to point out just the effect which the methods of the gun-shooters and whisperers would have on the political situation in Utah, and that they would be successful. He showed that they were using every underhand method to seduce Mormon Democrats from their political faith for the purpose of fighting the "American" party in this county. He then said that Utah was growing at a wonderful rate of speed, and that the newcomers to the state were not Mormons. He showed that should the Mormon Democrats fail to stand fast to their convictions it would mean the disruption of the Democratic party in Utah and a resumption of the Mormon and anti-Mormon issues. He said that no Mormon who went through the former Mormon-Liberal campaigns would willingly see a return of those conditions. He spoke in strong terms of the interference of corporations in this campaign, and asked the audience to consider the significance of the fact that yesterday there were seventeen corporations belonging to or hired by the American Smelting and Refining company working for the Republican party in Murray and the surrounding districts. He cited the decree of the New York Central railroad issued to their employees, which stated that should Taft be elected there would be an increase in wages, and should Bryan be elected there would be a decrease. He showed that just so long as the people allowed the big corporations to use such methods with success, so long would the country be in control of the moneyed interests, and urged the laboring men for their own protection to fight such methods by supporting Bryan and Knight at the coming election.

A DAUGHTER BORN.
Bridgport, Oct. 27.—The Bridgport newspaper announced that Captain and Mrs. Gladys Vanderbilt, who have been married a few days, have given birth to a daughter.

The Truth About American Panics

Since the occurrence of the panic of 1907, the Republicans have been somewhat timid in bringing forth their threadbare stock argument to the effect that Democratic legislation and hard times are found coexisting throughout our history. But notwithstanding that their arguments have been answered time and time again, yet the unscrupulous threats that are now being made with view to coercing the laboring men of the country to vote for Taft, and the endorsement of campaign arguments by the Republican candidate for the presidency, makes it advisable to call attention to the fact that every panic since the civil war originated under Republican rule and developed under Republican legislation.

The great panic which gave "Black Friday" to history occurred during the month of September, 1892, when the Republican party was in power. The panic of 1873, marked by the failure of Jay Cooke & Co. occurred while the Republican party was in power, and eleven months prior to the beginning of that panic that party had been re-elected to power.

The panic of 1892 began long prior to that year, and indeed, prior to the presidential election of 1892. The first indication of this world-wide panic was found in the panic in the Argentine Republic, which brought about the failure of the Baring Brothers of London, the English institution which was so heavily interested in the financial affairs of the South American republic. The closing of the mints of India to silver in 1893 caused that metal to drop about one-half in price, and thereby seriously affected the great mining interests of the intermountain country. As early as Nov. 11, 1890, the reports showed financial distress in New York, and the clearing house voted certificates to banks in need of assistance. The Boston Clearing House association did likewise on Nov. 17, 1890, and Barker Brothers & Co. of Philadelphia suspended at once. The Oliver Iron & Steel mills, Pittsburg, Pa., closed on Nov. 6, 1890. On the same date the cotton firm of Myer & Co. of New Orleans failed, with liabilities at $2,000,000. Jan. 3, 1891, Scottsdale rolling mills and pipe works and the Charlotte furnace and coke works, in Pennsylvania, closed. The American National bank of Philadelphia suspended on May 8, 1891, with liabilities of $2,250,000. The American National bank of Kansas City suspended with liabilities of $2,250,000. The Spring Garden National bank of Philadelphia closed its doors, and the Pennsylvania Safe & Deposit made an assignment. The Homestead strike and other strikes during 1892, and prior to election date, are well remembered by the people.

Many other failures might be cited, but the above record is sufficient to disclose the fact that the first indications of the so-called "panic of 1892" were given a little more than thirty days after the McKinley tariff bill became a law. From that date, Nov. 11, 1890, the panic raged, and while its effects were felt for several years, it reached its worst stage in the early days of 1894, during all of which time the Republican tariff law was in effect. The McKinley tariff bill became a law Oct. 6, 1890, and remained in effect until Aug. 27, 1894, when the Wilson tariff law went into effect. It is thus made clear that the panic raged at its height before the Democratic measure was enacted, and yet Republican orators have the audacity to tell the people that the "panic of 1892" was caused by Democratic legislation.

In this connection it is well to remember that when the Democratic administration surrendered the reins of government, March 4, 1889, there was in the federal treasury the largest surplus in history. When the Republican party was elected, March 4, 1893, there was a large deficit, and the incoming administration was finally persuaded to make bond issues, which its Republican predecessors had at one time thought necessary, but had carefully avoided.

It is a fact that during the closing hours of the Harrison administration, in 1893, the Republican secretary of the treasury caused to be prepared the plates for a bond issue. This issue was by the kind of the Harrison administration, and it was finally made by the Cleveland administration. Some Republican politicians deny that the Harrison administration contemplated a bond issue, but they do this only when there is no one present prepared to show the truth. The records at Washington show that Secretary of the Treasury Charles Foster issued an order Feb. 4, 1893, directing the chief of the United States bureau of engraving and printing to prepare plates for these bonds. The story is told very briefly in "Thirty Years of American Finance," a volume written by Alexander Dana Noves, financial editor of the New York Evening Post. This volume may be found in almost any public library.

On page 182 the following appears:
"By the close of January, 1893, the treasury's gold reserve had fallen to a figure barely eight millions over the legal minimum. With February's early withdrawals even larger, Secretary Foster so far lost hope of winning over the crisis that he gave orders to prepare the engraved plates for a bond issue under the resumption act. As a last resort, however, he bethought himself of Secretary Manning's gold borrowing operation in 1885. In February Mr. Foster came in person to New York to urge the banks to give up gold voluntarily in exchange for the treasury's legal tender surplus. (See New York Financial Chronicle, Feb. 12 and Feb. 18, 1893.) From a strict commercial point of view, there was good reason why the banks should not make any such exchange. But the plea that a panic must at all hazards be averted, combined with the argument of patriotic support of the government, at length prevailed. The New York banks turned over to the treasury, in exchange for notes, six to eight million dollars in gold. (See New York Tribune, Feb. 9, 10 and 11, 1893; New York Financial Chronicle, Feb. 11, 1893.)"

In face of the above facts, it is not about time that the Republican orators would cease their cry about the "panic of 1892," but undismayed when confronted with the history of the panics of 1893, 1873 and "1892," and with the records of 1897 still fresh in the minds of the people, and looking up at every turn like Banquo's ghost to remind the Republicans of the falsity of their prosperity arguments, the leaders of the Republican party are again seeking to influence the working men of this country by predicting dire calamities and times of distress if Bryan is elected. One would think that their own panic of 1892 would be sufficient to warn them of the futility of such forecasting, but the Republican party has never been noted for being confident of its ability to deceive the voters of the United States, and is taking it for granted that the arguments that proved so effective in 1896 will prove effective in 1908. But the American republic has learned several things about the Republican party during the past twelve years, and one of the most important is this: that it is possible to have panics under Republican administrations, even when conditions would seem to warrant the continuance of the greatest prosperity. The Democratic party firmly believes that the intelligence of the American people is now able to see through the possibility of its being deceived by such uninitiated tommy rot.

SLANT-EYED MAID FROM COAST JOINS LORD AND MASTER

Violet Moy and Kee Chin United According to Sacred Rites of Confucius and Chinese Honeymoon Is Duly Inaugurated.

Clothed in the finest and most beautiful of Oriental costumes, but with her face closely veiled from the eyes of the curious whose gaze is profaned to a Chinese bride, Violet Moy of San Francisco yesterday arrived in Salt Lake to meet her future husband, Kee Chin of this city.

Immediately upon her arrival she was taken to meet her husband at 143 Social Hall avenue, and the young couple were married according to the rites of Confucius. The ceremony occupied nearly the entire day.

None but the husband will be allowed to view the face of the bride during a period of three days. At the end of that time the young couple will be married according to American customs.

Kee Chin is well known to the residents of Salt Lake. He was born in Salt Lake, and was educated in the schools of this city. His father, Quong Chin, has been a resident of the United States for forty-two years, and has spent most of that time in Utah.

The wedding was not a result of an arrangement between the parents of the bride and groom, as is the usual Chinese custom. Violet Moy was also born in America, and received a thorough education in the public schools of San Francisco.

Last October young Kee Chin went to San Francisco on business, and while there met and fell in love with Miss Moy, who is a daughter of Moy Yung, a wealthy merchant of San Francisco. The young couple were married in San Francisco, and then came to Salt Lake to meet their future husband, Kee Chin of this city.

Quong Chin, father of the groom, demanded, however, that the marriage be celebrated with all the customs of the Flower Kingdom, and the bride conducted his son's bride from San Francisco to the arms of her husband. The young people, however, have become thoroughly imbued with the spirit and customs of the "foreign" land, and will supplement the Chinese ceremony by a civil marriage as soon as the period of feasting shall be past.

Miss Moy has the reputation among the Chinese of San Francisco for being a beauty, and was eagerly sought in marriage by the young bloods of the Chinese quarter. She has small feet, but they have not been bound so tightly as to prevent her moving gracefully. The Chinese ceremony was performed by Gung Ou of this city. Although not a priest of Confucius, he was chosen to perform the rites because of his celebrity in the matter of family. There are four generations of his family living, and his family has suffered fewer deaths during those four generations than any other Chinese family represented in Salt Lake. All of the family of Quong Chin have been born in Utah, and all have received excellent education and speak English fluently. Kee Chin has recently taken a civil service examination for a government position.

SPOKE FOR TAFT.
Sandusky, O., Oct. 27.—Postmaster General Meyer and General Oliver Otis Howard, friend of Lincoln and the early days of the second of two Ohio speeches here, made the closing rally of the campaign. The opera house was packed with people and hundreds were turned away. General Howard said Taft was much like Lincoln. The address of Mr. Meyer was received as word from President Roosevelt.

HARRIS' DUAL CAPACITY.

Much Criticism of County Attorney in Geiger Case.

The publication of the record in the Geiger case, as called up by the letter of Governor Cutler to Sheriff Wilson, has brought down a storm of criticism upon the head of County Attorney Harris. While it is understood that all the expense of extraditing Geiger is borne by the taxpayers at large, and that Harris was the attorney for Mrs. Geiger in her suit for divorce, a motive for his activity in the case is apparent. Mrs. Geiger was granted custody of her child, and as Geiger was out of the jurisdiction of the court at the time, having returned to California, Harris was called upon to bring Geiger back to the city and compelling the payment of the alimony.

Endorse Bryan.

As evidence of the way the laboring man in Ogden is going to vote in the coming election, a large number of men who were present at a meeting held by the Trades and Labor assembly, in which Mr. Bryan was endorsed, have signed a petition for the presidency. Austin Davis and Frank Russell of Salt Lake and a number of prominent local labor representatives were the speakers and strongly urged the laboring men to vote for the Nebraska.

Strange Cause of Death.

A strange case was brought to the attention of the medical men here yesterday in the death of Cornelius De Groot, the 20-year-old son of William De Groot. The cause of which is a mystery. The hole was sewed up and it was thought that he would recover, but he died about ten o'clock last night, less than twenty-four hours after being taken ill. He is survived by his father and several brothers and sisters, the mother having died about six weeks ago.

Death of Mrs. Baird.

Mrs. Mary H. Baird, wife of Robert Baird, died yesterday. Mrs. Baird was born in England in 1833 and in 1857 she joined the Mormon church and came to Utah and has been residing in Weber county ever since. She was the mother of ten children, and was a devoted mother and a good wife. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Lynn ward meeting house.
